EXTREME PENALTY

Paid by Czolgosz For Killing President McKinley.

NOT SORRY FOR HIS CRIME.

Final Effort to Extract a Confession Failed of Its Purpose.

WENT TO HIS DEATH LIKE A STÖIC.

Autopsy Revealed That the Assassin's Brain Was Above Normal—Body Buried in Prison Lot in a Preparation of Quicklime For Speedy Extermination. Incidents of the Concluding Climax of a National Tragedy.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Czolgosz rested exceedingly well Monday night for a man in the shadow of death. It was 4:45 o'clock before he finally awakened and left his cot. His sleep was almost unbroken throughout the night, and was restful and refreshing. He did not break his silence when he awoke nor did he show any indication of failing courage. Superintendent Collins and Warden Mead also arose at 4:45 o'clock. They breakfasted early and at once set about to perfect the final details of the execution.

Czolgosz had retired at 10 p. m. and slept so soundly that when Warden Mead went to the cell shortly before 5 o'clock Tuesday morning the guard inside had to shake Czolgosz to awaken him. He sat up on the edge of his cot and made no reply to the warden's greeting of "good morning." The warden took from his pocket the death warrant and read it slowly and distinctly to the assassin, who hardly raised his eyes during the perfunctory ceremony. Just as the warden stepped away from the cell door Czolgosz called to him and said: "I would like to talk with the superintendent." The warden responded: "He will be down presently." Then the condemned man rolled over on his cot, apparently anxious to sleep again. At 5:15 the guard brought him a pair of dark trousers with the left leg slit, so as to allow the free application of the electrode, and a light gray outing shirt. He was told to get up and put these on, which he did. Contrary to the usual custom, he was given a new pair of shoes. When dressed he laid down on the cot again and in this attitude Superintendent Collins found him at 5:30 when he went down to visit the prisoner. The superintendent stood in front of the steel bars and when the guard called Czolgosz's attention, he said: "I want to make a statement before you kill me."

"What do you want to say, Czolgosz?" asked the superintendent. "I want to make it when there are a lot of people present. I want them to hear me," said the prisoner.

"Well, you cannot," said the superintendent. "Then I won't talk at all," said the prisoner sullenly.

After the superintendent left the guards brought Czolgosz's breakfast, consisting of coffee, toast, eggs and bacon, and he ate with quite a good deal of relish. While he was partaking of this the witnesses were gathering in the offices of Warden Mead and at 7:08 the procession passed to the death chamber.

In the chamber the witnesses were ordered seated and then Warden Mead briefly addressed them, saying: "You are here to witness the legal death of Leon F. Czolgosz. I desire that you keep your seats and preserve absolute silence in the death chamber, no matter what may transpire. There are plenty of guards and prison officials to preserve order and attend to the prisoner." The execution at once proceeded.

IN THE DEATH CHAIR.

Czolgosz Gave Reason For His Crime. Said He Was Not Sorry.

Warden Mead gave the signal to have the prisoner brought in at 7:10 o'clock. Chief Keeper Tipper swung open the big steel door leading to the condemned cells and as the steel bars behind which Czolgosz had been kept were swung aside two guards marched the prisoner out into the corridor, two others following and the chief keeper walking in front. The guards on either side of Czolgosz had hold of his arm as if either to support him or to keep the prisoner from making a demonstration. As he stepped over the threshold he stumbled but they held him up and as they urged him forward toward the chair he stumbled again on the little rubber covered platform upon which the chair rests. His head was erect and with his grey flannel shirt turned back at the neck he looked quite boyish. He was intensely pale and as he tried to throw his head back and carry himself erect his chin quivered very perceptibly.

Czolgosz's Dying Statement.

As he was being seated, he looked about at the assembled witnesses with quite a steady stare and said: "I killed the president because he was an enemy of the good people—of the working people—I am not sorry for my crime," he said loudly, just as the guard pushed his head back on the rubber head rest, and drew the strap across his forehead and chin. As the pressure on the straps tightened and bound the jaw slightly, he mumbled: "I am awfully sorry I could not see my father."

It was exactly 7:11 o'clock when he entered the death chamber, but a minute elapsed and he had just finished the last statement when the strapping was completed and the guards stepped back. Warden Mead raised his hand at 7:12:30 Electrician Davis turned the switch that threw 1,700 volts of electricity into the living body. The rush of the current threw the body so hard against the straps that they creaked perceptibly. The hands clinched suddenly and the whole attitude was one of extreme tenseness. For 45 seconds, the full current was kept on and then slowly the electrician threw the switch back reducing the current volt by volt until it was cut off entirely. Then just as it had reached that point he threw the lever back again for two or three seconds. The body, which had collapsed as the current was reduced, stiffened up against the straps, when it was turned off again. Dr. McDonald stepped to the chair and put his hand over the heart. He said he felt no pulsation, but suggested the current be turned on for a few seconds again. Once more the body became rigid. At 7:15 the current was turned off for good. From the time Czolgosz had left his cell until the full penalty was paid, less than four minutes elapsed. The physicians present used the stethoscope and other tests to determine if any life remained and at 7:17 the warden, raising his hand, announced: "Gentlemen, the prisoner is dead."

The witnesses filed from the chamber, many of them visibly affected and the body was taken from the chair and laid on the operating table.

Rev. Cordello Herrick, chaplain of the prison, was in the death chamber ready for any call that might be made for his services. He was not wanted by the prisoner, however, and sat quietly in the rear of the chamber throughout the execution.

The clothing and personal effects of the prisoner were burned, under direction of Warden Mead, shortly after the execution.

THREATENING LETTERS.

List Will Be Made With a View to Running Down Anarchists.

When the body of Czolgosz had been removed from the room, where he was killed to the autopsy table, Auburn prison returned to the routine of its ordinary life. The prisoners who had been kept locked in their cells, were released at 7:45 o'clock and prison work was resumed at once. There was no excitement among the convicts. Scarcely 100 people had gathered outside the prison gate to watch the witnesses enter and wait until they reappeared. The witnesses dispersed quickly, some of them leaving for their homes as early as 9 o'clock.

Prison Supt. Collins made the following statement: "Just consider that within about six weeks from the death of his distinguished victim, Czolgosz was regularly tried, convicted, sentenced and executed, and this despite the fact that the law compelled us to give him four weeks to prepare for death. All has been done in a dignified way, and the greatest credit is due to Warden Mead for the care he has taken to strip the case of sensationalism. The execution was one of the most successful ever conducted in the state. Extraordinary care had to be taken in the case because both the warden and I received hundreds of threatening letters, many of them asserting in violent and intemperate language that the prisoner would never be put in the chair. I have decided for the present that we will not destroy the hundreds of letters written to Czolgosz, the warden and myself as to the case. Eventually they will be destroyed, but it has struck me that perhaps we should make a list of them, especially of those letters signed with full and proper names, in which condolence was offered to the prisoner or threats against us were made. My plan is to get the address of these people and keep the list for police reference. I believe that there may come a time when such a list would be valuable in running down anarchists."

THE AUTOPSY.

Physicians Find the Assassin Was Not Mentally Deficient.

Naturally almost the entire attention of the physicians assigned to hold the autopsy was directed towards discovering, if possible, whether the assassin was in any way mentally irresponsible. The autopsy was conducted by Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, E. A. Spitzka and Prison Physician Gerin. The top of the head was sawed off through the thickest part of the skull, which was found to be of normal thickness and it was the unanimous agreement of the microscopical examination that the brain was normal or slightly above normal. This demonstrated to the satisfaction of the physicians that in no way was Czolgosz's mental condition, except as it might have been perverted, responsible for the crime.

When the autopsy was completed the surgeons issued the following brief statement: "The autopsy was made by Dr. Edward A. Spitzka of New York, under the immediate supervision and direction of Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald of New York, and Dr. John Gerin, prison physician. The autopsy occupied over three hours and embraced a careful examination of all the bodily organs, including the brain. The examination revealed a perfectly healthy state of all the organs, including the brain. All of the physicians who attended the execution were present at the autopsy and all concurred in the findings of the examiners."

A lengthy technical statement was also made.

BODY BURIED.

Quicklime and Acid Will Soon Devour Murderer's Mortal Elements.

After the autopsy the body was placed in a black stained pine coffin, every portion of the anatomy being replaced under the supervision of Dr. Gerin and Warden Mead. Shortly afterward it was taken to the prison cemetery and an extraordinary precaution taken to completely destroy it. A few days ago under the warden's order an experiment was made to determine the power of quicklime in the destruction of flesh and bone which was not satisfactory. Warden Mead who conferred with some of the physicians present, and in conjunction with Supt. Collins, that the purpose of the law was the destruction of the body, that it was necessary to use quicklime for that end. Accordingly a quantity of acid was obtained and poured upon the body in the coffin after it had been lowered into the grave. Straw was used in the four corners of the grave as the earth was put in to give vent to such gases as might form. It is the belief of the physicians that the body will be entirely disintegrated within 12 hours. During that time and as long as deemed necessary a guard will be kept at the grave.

WOULD REVEAL NOTHING.

Czolgosz Maintained to the Last He Was Alone in His Crime.

Czolgosz was a carefully secured prisoner in Auburn penitentiary and his confinement and execution were devoid of sensationalism. State Superintendent of Prisons Cornelius V. Collins, was determined that the prisoner, despite the enormity of the crime, should gain no undue notoriety and issued strict orders for his complete seclusion. These orders were carefully carried out and from the time the prisoner entered the prison until he was brought to the death chair he was practically out of public view. During his imprisonment the post brought more than 1,500 letters, papers and packages to the prisoner, but none of these was ever delivered to him. They came from the army of letter writing cranks and were of every character, from harmless to vicious. The prison officials felt that the delivery of such a quantity of mail would not only seriously disturb him, but would have given him false ideas as to his importance and prominence. The other convicts in the death house were not permitted to talk to him, and the guards who kept the death vigil watched in unbroken silence. The seclusion of the prisoner operated both ways, for if the world went on in ignorance of the life of the prisoner from day to day, the prisoner lived in ignorance of what went forward in the world, even as to the great question affecting him. The rule of silence as to the prisoner was broken that he might have opportunity to prepare himself spiritually for his death.

The rule was also broken in a final effort to secure a confession from the condemned man. The prison officials felt that it was their duty to again seek to ascertain if others plotted with him or abetted him in the murderous plan he carried out at Buffalo. Superintendent Collins had a lengthy interview with him. Night was chosen for the inquiry and at 9 o'clock the superintendent called on Czolgosz. The prisoner was transferred to another part of the prison where there was no one to overhear the conversation. For the first few minutes Czolgosz sat in silence and the superintendent began to despair of getting any information. Finally, just as he was about to leave, Czolgosz answered one of his queries. From that time on he talked freely, but his utterances contained no enlightenment as to the cause for his crime or a possible conspiracy. The most important statement he made was one in which he absolutely denied that he had a handkerchief tied about his hand or that the pistol was concealed in any other place than his coat pocket. The superintendent said: "Now, Czolgosz, I want you to talk to me. I'm the only one that can do you any good, and if you tell me anything I may help you to get out of here." "I do not want to get out of here. They'd kill me outside," was the reply.

"Who'd kill you?" "Why, the people," said the prisoner. "You mean the men who told you to kill the president?" asked Mr. Collins. "No, nobody told me to kill the president. I mean the people."

"Who gave you the money to get to Buffalo?" "No one. A man in Chicago wanted to see me, and I went there from Cleveland."

"Who was the man?" pursued the superintendent. "I don't remember his name."

"Do you remember where he lived?" "No, I don't know the names of the streets there."

"How did you get to Buffalo from Chicago. Did this man pay your fare?" No sir. I had some money I earned at painting and carpenter work."

"Didn't this man in Chicago and some others tell you to kill the president?" asked Mr. Collins. "No, they didn't. I thought it out myself."

"Did you first follow the president to San Francisco to kill him?" "That's a lie," responded the prisoner. "I did not. I did not make up my mind till I'd been here a few days."

"You say you worked for your money? Your father says you never had any money, and that you would not work." "He's no good. He married a woman who made me cook my own food in the house after I had bought it." Superintendent Collins at intervals repeated the question as to who sent him to kill the president, but to each question he would respond: "Nobody. I did it myself."

"You know Emma Goldman; she says you are an idiot and no good and that you begged a quarter of her." "I don't care what she says. She did not tell me to do this."

"What did you kill the president for?" "He would not give me any work."

"Did you ever ask him for work?" "Yes, at Canton, once, and he turned me down."

"Did you ever ask anybody else for work?" "Yes, lots."

"Why didn't you shoot the people who refused you?" "They weren't like McKinley. He could have fixed me."

HAD NO HANDKERCHIEF.

"Who helped you tie up your hand in the handkerchief?" "Nobody. I never had a handkerchief on my hand. Anybody that says so lies. I had the pistol in my coat pocket, and when I got near the president, I pulled it out and fired."

"Why, they found the handkerchief you had it wrapped in," said the superintendent. "That ain't so, sir," he earnestly answered, "I did not have a handkerchief. I just had the pistol in my pocket."

Among the hundreds of letters received for Czolgosz at the prison was one, mentioning a girl named Amy of Chicago. Mr. Collins thinking to surprise him said: "Your girl named Amy of Chicago is coming to see you." The prisoner said, with stolid indifference, and without the least tremor of surprise, "I don't know any such girl. I don't want to see her."

"Do you know where you are now?" "Yes, in prison."

"Do you know where the prison is?" "No," was the reply.

"You know that you are going to die?" asked Mr. Collins. "Yes, I suppose so. I expected it," and he answered the question in the same categorical way that he had answered all the rest.

Mr. Collins closed the interview by saying: "If you want to tell me anything, the guards will notify me." Czolgosz made no reply and was taken back to his cell.

Told Another Story.

In his final interview with Superintendent Collins Monday night, Czolgosz made another explanation of his visit to Chicago just before he went to Buffalo, but later admitted that he had lied. He said that when he reached Chicago a boy whom he did not know approached him at the depot and handed him a packet of money. He said the money was for use on the Buffalo trip but that he never knew who sent it to him or the identity of the lad who delivered it. He then explained that most of the meetings of anarchists he attended at Cleveland were held in saloons designated by an anarchist newspaper. Half an hour later, when the superintendent brought in the brother and brother-in-law of the prisoner he brought up the subject again.

"How about that money you got at Chicago?" "What money?" asked the prisoner.

"Why the money you told me about here, earlier in the evening," said the superintendent. "Did I tell you that? I have forgotten if I did. I did not get any money. If I said so it was not true."

Another demonstration of the many falsehoods told by the prisoner was furnished by Waldek Czolgosz. He positively assured Warden Mead that his brother Leon could read and write, in direct contradiction of the oft-repeated claim of the prisoner that he was illiterate.

Let Him Alone.

When you ask a man to subscribe for your paper and he says, "Oh I never read much, and besides, the times are too plagued hard," for God's sake apologize and leave him. Life is too short to teach a jack to sing soprano. All gentlemen nowadays read newspapers, and lots of them. Show us a man who lives for years in a town or community and never subscribes for the papers published there and we will show you a man whose head is shaped like a piece of pie, with the point up, and whose ignorance is only exceeded by his gigantic gall.—Exchange.

At the election next Tuesday, voters in the various wards of this city will have the county ballot to mark, then the city ballot and will then have to have their vote recorded for members of the Board of Education, the vote for members of the board being given by word of mouth. It will keep every body hustling in the big wards to get all the vote in.

The Clinton County, (Ohio), Democrat says: "Senator Foraker sold his stock in the Cincinnati and Covington Street Railway Company, last week, for $247,000. He still holds his Cincinnati Consolidated Street Railway stock. He became a street railway magnate about the time he lobbied the fifty-year franchise bill through the Ohio Legislature. The connection is plain. All the biographies of Foraker are silent on this important event in his career."

At the election next Tuesday in this city one member of the Board of Education is to be chosen in each ward except the Second and Sixth, and in each of these wards two members are to be elected. Voters are intitled to vote not only for members from their own ward, but also from each of the other wards. In voting for members of the board, voters will call out their choice and their vote will be recorded by an election officer.

CHAIRMAN McCHORD, of the Democratic State Campaign Committee, sends an encouraging word to the rank and file. He says:

"We have received carefully prepared reports by precincts throughout the State and there is not a particle of doubt in my mind that the Democrats will have a safe working majority in both branches of the General Assembly."

The Democrats of Mason should do their part in the good work. See that not only Hon. John W. Alexander, but the rest of ticket receives an old-time majority next Tuesday.

THE LAW IN THE CASE.

A section of the election law reads that in case of death, resignation or removal of any candidate subsequent to nomination, unless a supplemental certificate or petition of nomination be filed, the chairman of the State, county or city district committee shall fill such vacancy.

It was under the authority conferred by the above provision that Chairman Slattery, of the Democratic Executive Committee, Tuesday selected Mr. W. W. McIlvain as the nominee for Jailor to fill the vacancy on the ticket occasioned by the death of the latter's father.

The new nominee is one of the city's successful young business men and upright citizens, a staunch Democrat and a most popular gentleman, with a host of warm friends throughout the county. Mr. Slattery's action meets with the heartiest approval on all sides.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Benefits Growing Out of the System—Inspector Rising Coming to Look Over the Proposed Routes.

[Courier-Journal.]

The people of Kentucky are to have another visit from Inspector Rising, who comes to look over the field for free rural delivery, and they should take advantage of the opportunity. They can get their mail delivered at their door if they will take the trouble to ask for it, and to see that the roads are good, which they ought to be anyhow. With good roads and free rural delivery, the value of real estate would rise and farmers would be put in closer touch with all the markets for their commodities, besides which their families and themselves would be happier and more contented. Fewer farmers' boys would go to town and city, abandoning comfortable homes and an independent life to eke out a laborious existence and one that puts them at the mercy of their employers.

When such advantages as these to be had for a little exertion, there is no reason why Kentucky may not soon be covered by the mail-carrier on his daily delivery trips. The objections of the fourth class postmaster who hopes to hold his trade by his exclusive privileges ought not to have any weight with the people. Get up petitions and have them approved by your Representative in Congress or your Senator; get good maps made, and the Government will do the rest.

"The blood is the life." Science has never gone beyond that simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgment are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. No one can be well balanced in mind and body whose blood is impure. No one can have a wholesome and pure life unless the blood is pure. Foul blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the blood is pure, body and brain are alike healthy and life becomes a daily happiness.

THE BEE HIVE

"The Girl in the Pink Pajamas,"

As a young woman in a popular comic opera is familiarly spoken of, has created quite a local furor in every city the play has visited, and we understand is responsible for a considerably increased demand on the part of women to wear PAJAMAS. We bought the Pajamas for men, but we won't keep the ladies from buying same. Did you ever wear Pajamas? Do you know what a comfort they are? Do you know how many colds they prevent? Do you know how many doctor bills you can save? If not, try a set. You will thank us for the suggestion.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. Told by Pain

If you have pains you should look after them quickly. Pain shows something is wrong. The sharper the pain the more danger there is in delay. There are thousands of women to-day who are bearing awful pain almost continually, rather than tell a physician about the shooting pains in their lower abdomen, about the agony of falling of the womb and the distress of leucorrhoea. They let the months pass and their trouble becomes harder to cure and more distressing. But modest women can secure exemption from the embarrassment of a private examination. When pain tells them of danger they can cure themselves by the use of in the privacy of their homes. You can be cured without distressing publicity. With these facts before you there is no reason for the delay which is increasing your misery and wasting the days of your life. Why not stop the pain today?

Belen, Miss., March 9, 1900.

I have used one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. Before I began to take your medicines I had pains in my back, hips, lower bowels and my arms. Sometimes I thought I would go blind. My head ached and I was so weak I could hardly walk across the floor. Now I can only feel a little of the pain in my side and I am going to use your medicines until I get cured, for I believe they will certainly cure me. I have been married twelve years and am the mother of seven children. I thank you for your wonderful medicine and what it has done for me.

Contributed by the Bulletin's Corps of Country Correspondents—Paragraphs Personal and Otherwise.

ORANGEBURG, Oct. 28.—Mr. Bradley, for four years past in charge of the Best farm, has resigned his charge to seek other fields and pastures new.

Prof. J. T. Pollitt and uncle, Ab. Bramel, shingled the former's house last week.

Pierce Bramel made an exceptionally fine shot at a crane that was perched in the top of an oak tree near the house last Sunday. One measuring the rare visitor it was found to be six feet in height and a beautiful specimen.

Miss Mary Heflin is attending the school under the efficient charge of the worthy Sisters of Loretto at Maysville, and advancing rapidly.

Paul Glascock was on the driver's seat of the 'bus again Monday morning after an absence of two weeks.

Mr. Stevens, the blacksmith, and his wife, are away on a visit to his brother-in-law.

Our candidate for 'Squire is Mr. Sam Farrow, a man eminently fitted for the responsible position both by nature and education. He is sociable, energetic, and a vote winner from the word go, and should have no difficulty in securing a rousing vote from his fellow Democrats which will land him at the apex of his present aspirations.

Claude Dickson, our Democratic nominee for Constable, is a deserving young man, well-known and well-liked by all. From present indications it is safe to say that when the votes are counted that he will be entitled, by the unanimous voice of his admiring fellow citizens, to the appellation of Constable Dickson.

Messrs. Mayhugh & Collis, of the Orangeburg Roller Mill, having their bins full of wheat, which will doubtless prove very attractive in the course of time to the rats that infest every neighborhood; therefore, know all men by these presents that the aforesaid firm announce themselves as able and willing to board and lodge any or all cats, without regard to age or sex, able and willing to do battle to these marauding rodents. Prompt delivery solicited, and satisfaction guaranteed to owners of such animals who wish to lease, rent or temporarily loan household pets, for their safety in transit to and from the mill and while on duty. The management reserve the right to refuse engagements to all kittens of immature age, (as no provision has been made at their establishment for bottle babies), and also such cats as are so far advanced in years as to be useless. Hoping to receive a prompt and generous response to their appeal, the firm remains the public's most obedient servants in the line of their business, flour and mill feed.

Uncle Eddam, a well known and very industrious and respected colored citizen, has been unable to get about for several weeks, owing to disability incidental to old age. When he was obliged to give up he was grieved about his crop which was left in an unfinished condition. But very kindly and unostentatiously Uncle Perry Jones, aided by some stalwart colored neighbors, took matters in hand, and snatching time from their own labors, garnered his crop, making everything safe and secure for the winter, without money and without price. This is an object lesson of true Christian charity, which should not be overlooked in these hurrying, grasping times of money making and selfishness.

"When the Indian summer skies
Paint the woods with wampum dyes"

Is the most enchanting season of the year, and we are enjoying it in perfection at the present writing. The mocking birds sing as gleefully as in the balmy summer days. "So cool, so calm, so clear, so bright," is the weather that we are not conscious of the approach of winter until admonished by the fall of the leaves, the dropping of the nuts, the squirrels busily laying up their hoards, the footsteps of that trickery sprite jack frost as seen in the mornings, and the long lines of wild geese winging their airy path to their winter home in the far southland.

EAST LIMESTONE, Oct. 23.—There was a Democrat speaking to-night at the residence of Fred Ring on Bullcreek pike.

Scarlet fever is prevalent on the Carmel pike and the Sedden school has closed in consequence.

Charley and Stanley Beigle are visiting relatives in West Union.

Little Karl Hauck was attacked with severe nasal hemorrhage Sunday morning during church service at Stone Lick.

A flock of wild geese was observed a few evenings since in their flight southward.

A protracted meeting is in progress this week at Stone Lick, conducted by Rev. Ellis, the local minister, who will be assisted by other able ministers.

Millions of the supposed-to-be Hessian flies were lately observed during their four day season of life. They had skeleton-like wings and kept in close proximity to the ground.

Supervisor Yancy had a number of citizens out on one of the Bernard county roads Monday giving it a much-needed improvement. And there are others that should follow his example.

Miss Emma Brodt filled the position as teacher at Bernard Monday in the absence of Miss Nelson, who was confined to her home by illness.

The Maysville beef consumers must certainly be enjoying a bonanza in the reduction of prices of beef, considering the low offerings by the butchers to the farmers for fat cattle.

WEDONIA, Oct. 28.—Farmers are through sowing wheat.

Mr. and Mrs. Case, of Maysville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Thomas.

Mrs. James Branch's house, together with its contents, burned Sunday night about eight o'clock.

Elder and Mrs. John Boyd Jones returned to their home in Bellevue Monday.

The members of the Millcreek Church are glad to know Mr. and Mrs. John T. Willett will live in their neighborhood next year.

Miss Mae Hord has been ill for several days, but is better at this writing.

GERMANTOWN, Oct. 26th.—One of the most enjoyable events of the season in this "neck of the woods" was the celebration of the fifth anniversary or "wooden wedding" of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Lloyd on the evening of October 21st. The invitations were many; relatives, friends, young and old, were invited. The night was a typical October moon-light, much the same as the night on which five years ago the couple plighted their troth and started the journey of life together. The bride and groom, always handsome, were at their best, and Miss Judith Osborne Lloyd was decidedly the belle of the evening. The house was beautifully decorated in autumn leaves. Under an arch of the same, in a cozy corner, hot chocolate and wafers were served. Many beautiful and useful wooden presents were received. About 10 o'clock the guests were invited to a sumptuous repast, which would have done honor to a diamond anniversary. At a late hour the guests departed, feeling the event would be one long to be remembered, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd a long and happy life, and a celebration of their golden wedding.
